CARMELO LODGE

Wingshooting in the Wine Country

Imagine, if you will, a paradise that combines the best elements of exciting wingshooting with the refinements of fine living in a Tuscan-like vineyard nestled among the rolling hills of Uruguay, where days are filled with fast-paced, almost chaotic, high-volume dove shooting, and midday breaks feature fresh lunches and sips of wine from the vineyard, served al fresco under a warm winter sun. The scents of wildflowers, fruit trees, and barbecues over glowing coals fill the clean air.

Carmelo Lodge combines all the comforts and charm of a refined vineyard retreat with dove shooting as exciting as any in South America. Warm hospitality, excellent shooting, and the relaxed atmosphere of Uruguay's wine country make Carmelo an ideal destination for couples, families, and groups of friends looking to enjoy great shooting and fine living in one of South America's most welcoming countries.

WHY CHOOSE CARMELO LODGE?

- Outstanding Dove Shooting, Year-Round: Enjoy high-volume dove shooting throughout the year among the rolling hills and vineyards of Uruguay's rich wine-producing countryside. The sheer number of birds and consistent flights rival those found at some of the finest dove shooting destinations in South America. Fast-paced action and consistently rewarding days in the field make this the heart of Carmelo's sporting experience.
- Short Drives to the Shooting Fields: Most of our shooting fields are within a 30-minute drive of the lodge, often just 15 minutes away. Good roads and short travel times mean more time in the field and less time spent driving each day.
- Beautiful Countryside and Shooting Environments: Carmelo's green rolling hills, vineyards, and native woodlands create a landscape reminiscent of the European countryside. Natural corridors and tree-lined flyways provide excellent shooting opportunities in a particularly scenic and enjoyable setting.
- Walk-Up Perdiz Hunting During May, June, and July: Guests visiting during Uruguay's upland hunting season can complement their dove shooting with walk-up perdiz hunting over pointing dogs. Uruguay is widely regarded as one of South America's finest destinations for perdiz hunting, offering the opportunity to walk beautiful green fields behind well-trained dogs and enjoy an entirely different style of wingshooting.
- A Lodge Set Within a Boutique Winery: Stay in the heart of Campotinto, one of Uruguay's notable boutique wineries, surrounded by vineyards, rolling hills, and beautiful countryside. The setting combines the pleasures of a wine-country retreat with the excitement of outstanding wingshooting.
- Experienced Outfitters and Personal Attention: Operated by David Denies Bird Hunting alongside our trusted Uruguayan partner, Bernardo Barrán, who brings over 35 years of wingshooting experience. Each day's shooting is carefully organized to suit the preferences and abilities of our guests. Our staff treats you like family, creating an atmosphere that feels more like a private house-party hunt than a traditional guided outing.

Carmelo's high-volume dove shooting offers fast-paced action throughout the year, with consistent flights and excellent shooting opportunities just a short drive from the lodge.

- Easy Access from Buenos Aires or Montevideo: Convenient travel options through both Argentina and Uruguay, including ground transfers, ferry connections, and private charters, make Carmelo an easily accessible wingshooting destination.

- Comfortable and Inviting Accommodations: With ten beautifully appointed guest rooms, spacious gathering areas, and inviting outdoor spaces, Carmelo provides an ideal setting for private groups, families, and couples looking to enjoy a relaxed and exclusive sporting getaway.
- Exceptional Cuisine and Fine Wines: From traditional Uruguayan asados and fresh local ingredients to excellent wines produced at Campotinto, dining is an essential part of the Carmelo experience. Relaxed lunches, memorable dinners, and warm hospitality are as much a part of the stay as the shooting itself.
- A Unique Microclimate: Influenced by the meeting of the Uruguay and Paraná rivers, Carmelo enjoys a distinctive microclimate that contributes to its lush green landscapes and provides an ideal environment for abundant dove populations throughout the year, as well as excellent seasonal perdiz hunting.
- Beyond the Hunting Fields: Located in the heart of Uruguay's wine country, Carmelo offers non-hunting guests the opportunity to visit some of the country's finest boutique wineries and sample excellent local wines, from Tannat, Merlot, and Cabernet Franc to Albariño, Sauvignon Blanc, and Chardonnay. Other activities include on-site massages, horseback riding, bicycle tours, cooking classes, and championship golf, while the historic city of Colonia del Sacramento is also within easy reach.

After a rewarding day in the field, guests gather around the fire to enjoy a drink, share stories, and unwind in the relaxed atmosphere of Carmelo Lodge.

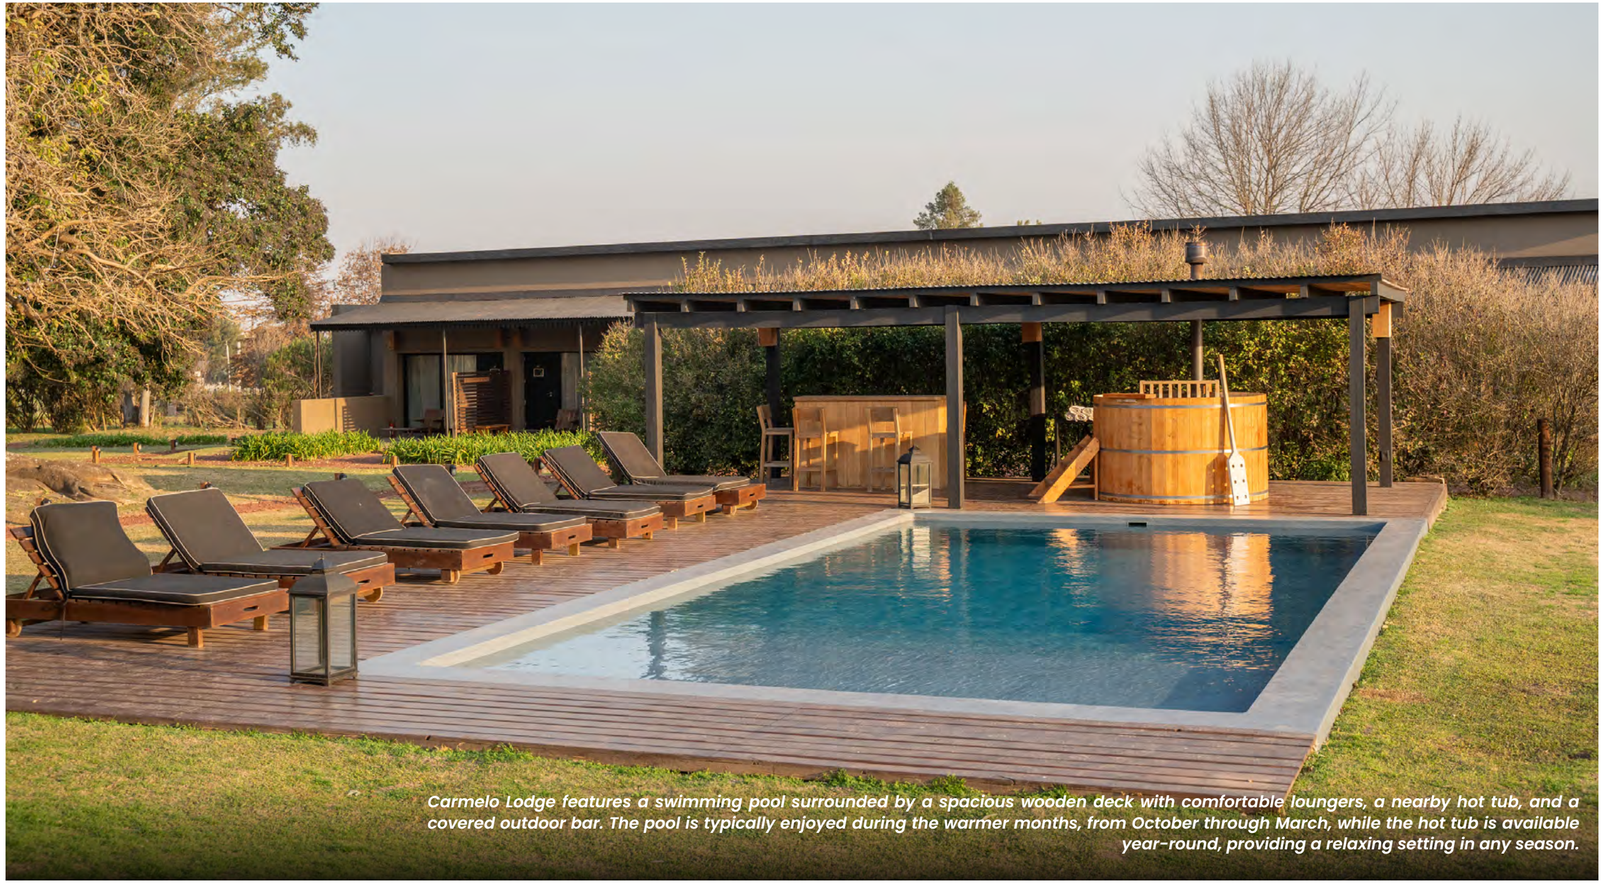

Carmelo Lodge's main dining room and spacious living area offer a warm, cozy atmosphere, complemented by a wine cellar and an indoor wood-burning stove for chilly winter days. LOCATION

Carmelo Lodge is located in the charming town of Carmelo, in western Uruguay, a region known for its wineries, beautiful countryside, and rich traditions. Carmelo holds a unique place in Uruguayan history as the only city founded personally by national hero José Gervasio Artigas, a distinction it proudly preserves to this day.

Just 45 minutes away lies the historic city of Colonia del Sacramento, whose beautifully preserved colonial quarter was designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1995. The majestic Uruguay River, gently rolling countryside, century-old trees, historic wineries, and a relaxed pace of life define the character of Carmelo. Here, tradition, nature, and tranquility come together to create a truly distinctive setting.

The region also benefits from a unique microclimate, influenced by the nearby convergence of the Uruguay and Paraná rivers, which form the vast Río de la Plata estuary. Warm waters flowing south from the continent help moderate local temperatures, creating favorable conditions for vineyards and contributing to Carmelo's long-standing winemaking tradition.

THE HUNTING

DOVE SHOOTING - All Year Round

Shooting for doves in Uruguay is much like anywhere else, with shooters placed along a flight line with careful attention to the best shooting opportunities, safety, and sun and wind position. Hunters always shoot from wellconstructed blinds, often crafted from palm trees, ensuring both cover and comfort in the field. What makes dove shooting in Uruguay truly special, however, is the setting: scenic green slopes that provide a stunning backdrop, where daily flyways unfold with remarkable consistency. Each shooter is paired with a field assistant responsible for locating downed birds, keeping you stocked with cartridges, and offering assistance with both shooting and refreshment. Once all shooters are in position, the action begins in earnest, and you are free to shoot at your own pace until the midday break. After lunch at the lodge, and a short siesta, shooters return to the field for more highvolume action in the afternoon.

Carmelo's dove shooting is defined by its remarkable bird populations and consistent daily flights, with excellent shooting fields located just 5 to 30 minutes from the lodge.

PERDIZ HUNTING - May through July

For those seeking additional variety, Carmelo Lodge offers traditional walk-up perdiz hunting during Uruguay's winter season, from May through July. This classic upland experience provides an exciting contrast to the fast-paced action of dove shooting.

Hunters take to the field in pairs, accompanied by an experienced guide and dog handler, working behind a well-trained pointing dog. Walking through open grasslands and pastures, they follow the dog as it searches for wild perdiz and locks up on point. Hunters then move into position for the explosive flush and challenging shot that make perdiz hunting such a rewarding upland experience.

This seasonal option allows guests to combine two distinct styles of wingshooting during their stay, while keeping Carmelo's outstanding dove shooting at the heart of the experience.

Perdiz hunting brings a different pace to Carmelo's wingshooting experience. Walking the open grasslands behind a well-trained pointing dog, hunters enjoy the anticipation of each point and the challenge of a fast, unpredictable flush.

In perdiz hunting, guides work with pairs of hunters, handling the pointing dogs as they search the fields for wild birds....

...during dove shoots, guides scout the most productive flight lines and select shooting positions, while dedicated field assistants keep hunters supplied with cartridges, retrieve downed birds, and provide assistance throughout the day.

As the day winds down, guests return from the shooting fields to relax by the fire and enjoy the comforts of the lodge. Evenings at Carmelo are all about good company, excellent local wines, and the warm hospitality of Uruguay's wine country.

DAILY ITINERARY

Mornings begin with a wake-up call approximately one hour before departure, followed by a freshly prepared breakfast featuring a variety of options, from waffles to Eggs Benedict, all made to order. Hunters then head out to the nearby dove shooting fields for a morning of fast-paced, high-volume shooting.

From May through July, guests may alternatively choose to spend their mornings pursuing wild perdiz over trained pointing dogs. Hunters head into the field in pairs, accompanied by an experienced guide and dog handler, working with a pointing dog through Uruguay's open grasslands and pastures. Departure times vary depending on the season and hunting conditions.

Lunch is typically enjoyed back at the lodge, offering guests the opportunity to relax over a leisurely meal, followed by a short afternoon siesta before heading back into the field.

THE CAMPOTINTO WINERY

The Viganó family, with roots in Fiesole, right in the heart of Tuscany, always migrated searching for places where they felt at home. During their search, this generation found its place in Carmelo, Uruguay. They settled here with an idea in mind: to build a place where family, friends and customers felt comfortable, and could easily mix all of the elements up and create great stories.

A place where you arrive for the first time, but somehow you realize you´ve already been here. A house, a gallery with a huge vine, a big country table with homemade honest food, fire and wine. Delicious wine. And just like that, in 2013 Campotinto was born from that simple idea. What started as a winery, ended up as a whole experience through the vines, the Inn and the Restaurant.

Just like almost all wineries in Uruguay, Campotinto went full-on for Tannat, a strain that managed to transform the country into a real stand-out amongst wine making countries. Being a boutique winery, it's all about the care of the vine, the perfect ripening of its grapes, the expertise, the passion and the technology. Sum it all up and the result is the best expression of this terroir´s grapes.

Campotinto began vinification in 2012, and to this date they have different expressions of Tannat, Blends, Viognier and its stellar wine Medio y Medio, developed as a tribute to the famous beverage born years ago at the Port of Montevideo. In 2015, it was praised and acclaimed by The New York Times, described as ''Tuscany in miniature''.

Surrounded by the vineyards of Campotinto, Carmelo Lodge offers a setting unlike most traditional hunting destinations. Here, the region's winemaking heritage, beautiful countryside, and exceptional wingshooting come together in one distinctive experience.

NON-HUNTING ACTIVITIES

Beyond its exceptional wingshooting, Carmelo offers a variety of activities for guests looking to explore the region, discover its traditions, or simply enjoy their time away from the field.

GOLFING: Just five minutes from the lodge, Carmelo Golf offers an 18-hole course surrounded by countryside and vineyards. Its scenic setting and challenging layout make it an excellent option for golf enthusiasts.

BIKING: Explore Carmelo's quiet country roads and vineyard landscapes by bicycle. An enjoyable way to discover the surrounding countryside and experience the natural beauty of the region.

MASSAGES & RELAXATION: For those looking to unwind, massage services provide a relaxing complement to the lodge's comfortable accommodations, inviting outdoor spaces, and peaceful surroundings.

COLONIA DEL SACRAMENTO CITY TOUR: Just 45 minutes from the lodge, the historic city of Colonia del Sacramento offers a fascinating glimpse into Uruguay's colonial past. Explore its UNESCO World Heritage-listed historic quarter, with cobblestone streets, colonial architecture, and centuries of history.

WINE & DINE EXPERIENCE

With such a lovely lodge and options for fine wines and dining, hunters have several options in this attractive region. During your hunting stay you may arrange a dining experience at one of the nearby wineries as part of a larger wine tour of Uruguay. For yet a deeper dive, you could extend your stay at Carmelo Lodge after your hunting stay is complete and, while staying at Carmelo, visit the other wineries as well. Or lastly, stay at one of the other wineries after your shooting stay at Carmelo for the ultimate shooting and wine tour of friendly Uruguay.

LOS CERROS DE SAN JUAN

Visit the oldest winery in Uruguay, so old in fact that it was declared a national monument as an important part of the nation of Uruguay's heritage. The proximity of the two rivers have left soils that are ideal for the production of both grapes and olives, and the resulting vineyard excels at producing both. The warehouse and wine cellar are both built in stone, allowing the production of high-end wines in ideal conditions of humidity and temperature, recently reopened after a year and a half of restoration.

NARBONA

Appropriate for those who may wish to cast a slightly wider net and enjoy a few more lazy days in Uruguay is a Relais and Chateaux property, the Narbona winery. While this is a respected and fully operational winery that was first established in 1909, the Narbona vineyards have elevated the farm-stay experience with several lovely private rooms, three exclusive restaurants, and a dedication to personalized service that is refreshing and fine. If you have extra time to stay in Uruguay, don't miss it!
